“ My deepest sympathies to John's wife and family. JD, as we often called him at Kenyon College, was a great guy, and will be sorely missed.

I met JD my first week at Kenyon at the McBride dorm; we were two 18-year-olds eager to have fun in between studying. Fun we had, so after that first year, we joined the same fraternity and later shared an apartment.

One of my favorite memories with him was our senior-year trip to Vieques, Puerto Rico. Kenyon pals Tom Parker, Andy Ferguson, JD and I spent a week cruising from pristine beach to pristine beach, beer and snorkels in hand. For sure one of the best vacations I'll ever have, thanks in large part to JD.

I wish I had been more in touch in recent years. But nevertheless, I'll miss John's intelligent conversation and fun-loving nature. I also wish we could have shared one last round of golf together when several Kenyon friends celebrated our 50th birthdays at Fisher's Island right before John's passing.

*Take care my friend,

“ John was my old hall-mate and eventual room-mate at college. We got to know each other pretty well and became lifelong friends. John loved life and lived it to the the fullest. We shared countless memories during our years at Kenyon and the times we got together thereafter. He never failed to congratulate me any time my Minnesota teams did something remarkable (not often, but there were moments) and he had an amazingly deep understanding of Philadelphia sports. His love of golf was infectious and he sure could hit the ball. In his recent years his knowledge of the produce business was something that we often talked about and John was never one to shy away from sharing his observations. John was also fiercely independent. His marriage to Kim showed us a side of John that was loving and appreciative. JD, as we all called him, was indeed larger than life. I will miss him and send my deepest sympathies to his wonderful wife Kim and John's entire family.

“ John was an old friend, college roommate, occasional traveling companion and golfing buddy. He was a larger-than-life, unforgettable character, whose generosity of spirit and love of fun and games swept up those around him and forged life-long memories for all those who knew him well. He could be exhausting to be around but always worth the effort. Hilariously disorganized and accident prone, he managed to get where he was going in spite of himself. He was remarkably thoughtful and caring in his way, and his perspective on life always struck me as unique. I feel fortunate to have known JD and I send my deepest sympathies to his loving wife Kim and to his entire family. He will be greatly missed.
